Oil on canvas

Description

This is an oil on canvas painting. It is a landscape with a horizon line that runs very nearly through the middle of the picture plane. Slightly diagonally across the foreground is a path; it creates a bright triangle of green at the bottom of the picture plane. Next to the path are three thin trees with minimal foliage. There is a partial fence stretching across the green field in the middle ground. In the background are a few more trees and a house. There is a river running horizontally across the background: the only evidence of this is the darkening of the colors between the green field and the background. There are also hazy bluish mountains in the background.
