Doll Cylinder

Date

1981

Primary Maker

Joey Kirkpatrick

Medium

Blown glass with metal wire

Description

The vessel is a blown glass cylinder with imagery of a seated male doll and toy horse, both outlined in wire. The male doll figure is wearing teal green knickers, a brown collared, long-sleeved shirt and matching hat, both with a mottled pattern, a brown striped vest, black shoes with yellow soles. His skin is nearly opaque white, the lips are deep red, and the eyes are a brilliant blue. He has short black hair. A large abstract shard, beige in color covers part of the cylinder and acts as backdrop for the doll and horse. The wind-up toy horse figure, white in color is on the other side of the vessel (about  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the way around). The overall color of the vessels is colorless with grey-yellow tints. There are minor bubbles in the glass. Mark: "Joey Kirkpatrick Flora Mace 1981" in script around the pontil mark on the bottom of the vessel.
